PAST, PRESENT, AND FUTURE.

[Entered according to Act of Congress, in the year of our Lord One Thousand Eight Hundred and Fifty-Seven, by CHARLES M. CHASE and MARCUS D. BORUCK, in the Clerk's Office of the District Court of the Northern District of the State of California.]

No. 8.

The Board of Delegates met on the 5th of June, and in addition to other business, Mr. Jones of Engine Co. No. 4, moved, "That the Treasurer of the Committee of arrangements on annual parade (Mr. Keenan) be instructed to have the $150, paid by him to Engine Co. No. 3 refunded." The motion was ruled out of order by the President and the Board adjourned until the 15th of the same month; at which time Mr. Torbert of Engine Co. No. 1 moved the adoption of the following Resolutions, which were ruled out of order.

Resolved, That the report of the temporary Treasurer, J. C. Keenan, be accepted provided that it be

Resolved, That the action of the Committee of Foremen in paying the bill of $150, for music on the occasion of the Fireman's Anniversary Parade, the same having been under the immediate command of Engine Co. No. 3, and not of the Department, was unjust, and that Sacramento Engine Co. No. 3 be requested to pay back to J. C. Keenan Treasurer the said amount so expended.

Subsequently the Board adopted upon the call or ayes and noes, the last resolution.

This Resolution, although simply a request was never responded to in any manner by the Company refered to.

On the morning of the 3d, of July, at the Orleans Hotel, Miss Virginia Bigler daughter of Gov. John Bigler, preseuted to the Fire Department a magnificent Banner, the cost of which was $400 made of heavy silk and trimmed with gold fringe. On one side is represented a Fireman holding a child in his arms ascending a ladder from a building enveloped in flames. On the reverse side is represented the coat of arms of the State of California, surrounded by a wreath, and inscribed the words "Fire Department, Organized March 10th, 1851." The Banner was received by Henry Polley Chief Engineer with an appropriate address.

On the 9th of July, 1855, Young America Engine Co. No. 6 was admitted by the Common Council into the Fire Department.

At a special meeting of the Board of Delegates on the evening of the 17th of July the credentials of John H. Housman vice Wm. Arents,—Foreman and Andrew Aitkin vice John H. Housman, Delegates of Engine Co. No. 2; of L. E. Burkmar, vice D. S. Hayden, Delegate of Engine Co. No. 3; of August Koneman vice J. T. Greenebaum Delegate of Engine Co No. 4, and of Robt. Robinson (Foreman) and D. C. Clapp, Levi Nye Delegates from Engine Co. No 6 were presented read and accepted and the gentlemen admitted to seats in the Board.

At the same meeting the following gentlemen were elected to act as Judges of the Engineers election to be held on the 6th of August following, viz: W. B H. Dodson of H and L 2, W. B. Hunt of Engine 1 and L. E. Burkmar of Engine 3. They were empowered to fill vacancies.

The Board by vote at the same meeting declared the office of "Trustee at large" vacant, as provided in article 5 section 4 of the Constitution of the association, which says:

"Whenever the Fire Department of this city shall consist of nine Companies the office of "Trustee at large" shall cease to exist.

On the sixth of August the annual election for Engineers took place with the following result:

For Chief Engineer 314 votes were cast, of which,
Hiram Arents of Engine 2 received.....164
Henry Polley " " 150

For First Assistant Engineer 304 votes were cast of which,
W. C. Felch of Hose 1 received.....170
Paxon M. Dowell of Engine 1 " 134

For Second Asst. Engineer 306 votes were cast of which
L. E. Burkmar of Engine 1 recived.....156
W. H. Jones of Engine 4 " 150

The Board of Delegates on the evening of the 7th of the same month declared Hiram Arents' duly elected Chief, W. C. Felch First, and L. E. Burkmar Second Assistant Engineers of the Sacramento Fire Department for one year from that date.

We have now the painful duty to perform of chronicling one of the most, pusillanimous acts ever recorded as the deliberate and determined action of a body of men legislating for the good of an enlightened community.

On the 13th of August 1855 the Common Council passed an ordinance reducing the salary of the Chief Engineer from $1200 to $600, per annum, and this at a time too when the Chief elect had been in office only one week as soon as this action of the Board of Aldermen was known among the Firemen an almost universal outburst of indignation and an intense feeling of disapprobation was manifested; accordingly, on the evening of the 15th a mass meeting of Firemen was held at Concert Hall K street, and the following Preamble and Resolutions were presented, by a committee composed of J. H Nevet, John H. Housman and W. B. H. Dodson, and adopted without a dissetning voice,

WHEREAS, The Common Council of this city did on the 13th inst pass an ordinance reducing the salary of Chief Engineer from $1200 to $600 per annum therefore.

Resolved, That as firemen, citizens and property owners, we do most empathically protest against the passage of said Ordinance, believing as we do that the sum of $1200 is a small compensation for the proper discharge of the duties of the office of Chief Engineer with honor to the incumbent credit to the office and the guarantee of safety to the property of our fellow citizens.

Resolved, That the Mayor be and he is hereby respecifully requested to return the aforesaid Ordinance to the Common Council for their further consideration without his approval.

Resolved, That a communication accompanied by these Resolutions be sent to the Council signed by the officers of this meeting requesting that honorable body to re-consider their ation on the Ordinance above referred to.

On the 20th of the same month Mayor English deeming the expressed wish of the Firemen worthy of consideration, vetoed the Ordinance, and on the same evening the Council re-passed it.

We now come to the official action of the Department as expressed by their representatives the Delegates of the several companies.

Official.

A Legend of the White Mountains.

BY CLARENCE MELVIN.

Hundreds of years ago, before the foot of the white man had pressed the soil of New Hampshire, there dwelt in that State a powerful tribe of Indians, whose name is almost forgotten. Their dominion extended from the White Mountains on the north to the ocean on the south, and from the Androscoggin to the Connecticut on the east and west.—They were feared and respected by the neighboring tribes, not so much for their wisdom in government, or greatness of character, as for the skill and power they displayed in the savage warfare that was continually waged between the contending chiefs. Accustomed to danger and hardships in every form, and taught to consider themselves invincible, they had learned to regard life as valueless if its price was victory, and that death an honor which was won in the heat of battle. The only enemy whom they had reason to fear lived at the North, but the icy mountains separated them, and though the most deadly hatred was cherished by each, the bond of peace which had been imposed by the Great Spirit, could not be broken with impunity. The deep animosity and jealously that existed between them, was only governed by that superstition and fear, that is so potent with uncivilized man. The rival tribe was also very powerful, and as unyielding as themselves. Their braves were strong and fearless, and in battle they were like the fierce wind that sweeps everything before its fury. Their wigwams were covered with the scalps of their enemies, and the sacred beads that were too numerous to count, told how many of the enemy had fallen before their tomahawks.

The hatred that existed between the rival tribes only increased with the passage of years. They held no communication, and avoided each other as much as possible.

Many moons before, Wacouza, the young chieftain of the North, had loved the daughter of his rival, and his affection was returned. He first saw her paddling her light canoe over the little lake, and from that moment a wild passion filled his soul, that it was vain for him to attempt to smother.—He watched her till she had landed upon the opposite side, and then unbending his bow, and fastening his quiver upon his shoulder, he retraced his way over the snowy mountains, forgetful of everything except the Indian maiden. He became more silent and taciturn, refusing to answer any questions which his warriors asked, and passed his time in his wigwam, with no living creature to keep him company except his faithful dog. The battle-field and the chase had no pleasures for him, and it was in vain that his braves sought to draw him from his seclusion, and awake his mind from the legarthy into which it had fallen.

Suddenly he again resolved to cross the mountains. He filled his quiver with his best arrows, strained his bow, and departed at the close of day, without informing any one of his destination. The withered leaves rustled in his path, and the naked branches threw their shadows before him, but he pressed on with measured steps, unmindful of the deep darkness of the trackless forest, or of the autumn wind that sighed through its branches. It was a long journey, but the chieftain's limbs were strong, and his heart was fearless. He climbed up the steep sides of the mountains till he reached the highest summit, covered with the first light snow of the season, and then descending upon the other side, he gained the cover of the forest that circled the little lake, just as daylight was tinging the East with red. Here, in the depths of the woods, he felt secure, though in an enemies' country, and throwing himself upon the ground to refresh his weary nature, he watched the light smoke curl up in the distance from the wigwams of his foes.

Many hours passed before he caught sight of Winona, the Indian maiden. The light wind just ruffled the surface of the water, and away in the distance he saw her light canoe drawn up on the white beach. The deer came down and lapped the water within reach of his arrows, but they passed away unmolested. She made her appearance at length, long after the sun had passed the meridian, and pushing the frail bark from the shore, paddled it out into the lake. The young warrior's heart beat high with hope, and he gazed with admiration upon her graceful form, as she swayed lightly to and fro in propelling the boat. He saw with joy that she was directing it toward him, and would probably land upon the shore if not alarmed. The canoe glided swiftly over the water, guided by the skilful hand of the young voyager, and the chieftain's eye kindled as she came nearer and nearer. Her long, dark hair swept unconfined over her neck and shoulders, and fell in wavy masses to her waist.—Her figure was slight and symmetrical, and her clear, dark complexion was lighted up with a ruddy glow, that gave evidence of health and youth.

With a few graceful sweeps of the paddle, the Indian girl guided the bark into a narrow inlet, but a little distance from where Wacouza rested As soon as it touched the sands, she stepped to the shore, and drawing it up so that the winds and the waves would not drift it away, she busied herself in gathering the wild flowers and evergreens that grew among the trees. The young chieftain's heart beat wildly as she approached him; not with fear, for he was aware that he would not be recognized; but with contending emotions, such as he had never before known. Drawing himself to his full height he leaned upon his bow, and awaited the moment when she should discover him. His suspense was not of long duration. The bewildered maiden would have fled to her boat, but the kind words and manly bearing of the stranger deterred her.

"The lily of the forest need have no fear of the unknown hunter," said Wacouza, in a quick breath; "for he means her no harm. He has watched her canoe across the blue lake, and in the distance he has seen the smoke ascend from the wigwams of her tribe. He holds in his hand the pipe of peace, and he only asks that he may be heard."

"What would the stranger say? The ears of Winona are open," said the maiden, in a trembling voice.

The warrior's bosom throbbed quicker as she spoke. He had not known till now that she was the daughter of the sachem of her tribe. He forgot the jealousy that existed between himself and her father, at the sound of her liquid voice, and he longed to tell her all his love and admiration.—With that openness that is so natural to Indian character, he did not hesitate to speak of what dwelt in his mind, and his language was clothed with ease and simplicity, that denotes a soul filled with the higher attributes of nature.

"The father of Winona is rich and powerful, and his braves are like the leaves of the forest. His tomahawk is sharp, and his arrows are true, and his wigwam is covered with the scalps of his enemies. But the stranger brave is not less powerful or noble, for he is the sachem of his people, and they look up to him as a father. Their souls are as one, and when he leads them to battle, they never turn back from the foe. His wigwam is clothed with the skins of the moose and bear, and the deeds of his fathers are recorded upon the sacred stone which the Great Spirit has bestowed upon his tribe."

Winona gazed with admiration upon the young chieftain as he spoke, and with that impulse characteristic of her race, she listened eagerly to his words, and treasured them up in her mind. The appearance of the stranger was so manly and noble that she did not doubt but what he said was true. His dark eyes flashed with a deeper light, while his tall form seemed to rise in still more majestic proportion, and his bosom swelled while he spoke of the greatness of his fathers. As he paused, the maiden said:

"Winona hears. She has listened to the words of the unknown brave, and she believes him. The Great Spirit looks down with kindness upon all his children, and blesses them alike; and if some of them are unhappy, it is their fault and not his. If her tribe are powerful, they are also happy; for Manito has given them all they could wish, and they thank him in their hearts for his goodness. Their hunting-grounds are boundless, and the game is plentiful, and they hold the pipe of peace to all their brother tribes."

"As the water to the parched earth, so are the words of Winona, the forest flower, to the stranger. He lingers on the melody of her voice, and lives in the light of her eyes If the arm of her father is strong, her glance is more powerful, for it conquers the heart of the beholder. Her eyes are like the stars that shine in the sky, and her voice is like the breath of the soft South wind Her long hair falls in waves like the branches of the drooping willow, and her form is like that of the young deer sporting upon the hills. Will the mountain bird listen? Her lake is beautiful, and she is happy in her father's smile, and her tribe delight in her presence. Her wigwam is clothed with soft furs, but there is another that would be lighted by her smile, which is now lonely and cheerless; and if she will accompany the stranger, and be his companion, she shall be happy. The young maidens shall twine beads in her hair, and strew flowers at her feet, and when she is weary they shall watch over her, and the Great Spirit will look down with joy and bless them. Wha' says the water lily?"

The eyes of the maiden lighted up with joy, and a smile rested upon her features, but it suddenly faded, and turning half away, she gazed over the waters where burned the council-fires of her tribe.

"The words of the stranger are welcome, but Winona cannot accept them She is very happy, and if she were to leave her tribe her father would die of grief His hairs are gray, and she could not turn his heart to sorrow, for if she should the frown of the Great Spirit would rest upon her forever."

"The tones of the mountain bird are very sad, and sink into the heart of her listener. He has longed to look upon her, for she is the star of his life, and his hope has been that she would love him; yet he would not sacrifice her happiness to his own. If she will go with him, she can visit her father's wigwam at pleasure, and he will forgive her when he knows it is for her happiness."

Winona seemed undecided what to do, for her ardent, impulsive nature, untutored by civilization, drank in every word that was spoken; and the fine form and noble appearance of the young brave had won her admiration. Laying her flushed cheek in her hand, she gazed once more at the setting sun, and then turning toward the chieftain said:

"The hunting-grounds of the stranger may be broad and his warriors countless, but Winona cannot go with him. Her father could not forgive her, and would mourn in secret for her loss. Where is the chieftian's home, and what is his name?"

"His name is Wacouza, and his hunting-grounds are beyond the mountains."

The maiden gazed with astonishment at the warrior, who, conscious of right, stood up proudly in his own strength.

"Wacouza is the enemy of the father of Winona. The tomahawk has been unburied, and the bow unbent, and the pipe of peace unlighted. His life is in danger, for should he be discovered by Uncas, his revenge would be complete. Yet Winona wishes him well, and, as a proof of her friendship, she will meet him on the morrow when the moon rolls up over the forest."

Pushing her light canoe from the shore, the Indian girl paddled it out into the silvery lake, and directed it toward the opposite side. Wacouza followed its wake with his eyes till it had reached its destination, when, again drawing it up on the sands, the maiden passed in the forest and disappeared from his sight. He seated himself upon the banks, and leaning his head upon his bosom, watched the faint sunset light steal over the water, while his soul was wrapped up in the veil of thought. His bow was cast thoughtlessly by his side, and the arrows lay upon the ground, for he was forgetful of everything save that one living presence. Winona had cast a charm upon his senses which time could not wear off, and he thought how cheerless would be the future if he could not listen to the melody of her voice. It would be difficult to trace his imaginings, as thought upon thought crowded upon his mind, for imagination differs widely from reality. He was the king of his people, but he could not govern his own soul, and he felt how useless was the trial.

Another day had passed, and the sun had sunk behind the western hills, and the round moon rising up over the lake brought the time when Winona was to meet him again. He watched eagerly for her appearance, and when he saw her light boat upon the water he could hardly contain his joy. She looked even more beautiful than before, and when she stood beside him, and her dark eyes met his own, he could not refrain from again telling his love.

"Winona has again come to warn her brother of his danger. He treads upon the hunting-ground of his enemy, and his braves are not near to defend him. If he regards his safety, he must depart at once, before another sun falls upon the water. Does her brother hear?"

"His life is worthless unless Winona will go with him Her father is his enemy, but will forgive all when she is gone. The wigwam of Wacouza will be silent without her voice to cheer its gloom, and his heart will be filled with sadness. If she will accompany him, the Great Spirit will accompany them, and they will be happy."

The tones of the hunter fell upon Winona's ears like music, and when she gazed in his eyes they burned with such a deep light that they seemed to pierce to her very soul. Her heart throbbed more quickly, and she turned her gaze to the ground to hide the emotions that worked upon her features Her love for the noble stranger was overcoming her resolution, and his words to her were as sunshine to the flowers He took her hand in his own and and continued:

"Wacouza's tribe and that of Uncas can become as one. The same wigwam cover the warriors, and they can smoke the pipe of peace together. The tomahawk will be buried, and they will be as brothers, if the fair wild flower will become the bride of Wacouza."

"Winona will go, for her heart is weak. She may see her father no more; but she cannot refuse. If she does wrong, may the Great Spirit forgive her."

The heart of the Indian lover swelled with joy as she spoke, and he drew her furs still closer around her, to shield her from the cold night wind. The young girl gazed across the moonlit waters toward her home, while a sigh escaped from her full and throbbing bosom, and her eyes filled with tears, and then resigning her hand to her companion, she followed with him under the naked branches, and over the dead leaves that rustled in their path. Half supporting the fragile form of his beautiful burden, the Athletic Indian pressed onward up the steep sides of the high mountain before him, pausing only when she was weary to let her rest, and cheer her in their arduous journey. But she did not falter, for with that deep resolve and devotion that characterizes the race, when the first step is taken, her heart remained firm and unshaken, and she needed no encouragement to guide her on. Up, still higher and higher they climbed, till the clouds lay under their feet and all around them. The dry leaves were covered with a thin robe of snow, but it offered no impediment to their journey. The hard frozen earth resounded to their tread, and the huge rocks loomed up before them like spectres, but they passed them unheeded.

But the moon, that had shown so clearly and brillantly below, become obscured by clouds. Wacouza had noticed with anxiety the deep, dark volumes roll up the steep sides of the mountain, for they foretold the coming storm. He did not fear for himself, but for her who was dearer to him than life. The path, which had been so plain in the moonbeams, had become obscured by the darkness, but the unerring eye of the hunter still marked its place. The wind swept past them in fitful gusts, bearing the light snow before it like chaff, and the twigs of the stunted trees bent and writhed in its grasp, while their dark tops swayed to and fro with a moaning sound, that seemed like a wail of agony. To add to the increasing gloom, the snow commenced to fall in broad flakes and the darkness became more intense. Wacouza heart sunk within him at the dismal view, for although the path might be followed, it would be a long time ere they could reach their destination, and his tender companion would be exposed to the pitless fury of the storm. He still pressed on, shielding her as much as possible from the wind with his own body, and encouraging her by his example and words.

The storm increased, and the wind became almost a hurricane. It was impossible to resist its fury. The snow, which had fallen so fast, had become so deep that it was with difficulty that they could make their way through it, and Wacouza could feel the form of his companion tremble with cold. To return was equally as difficult as to go on, and the young chieftain at once saw the necessity of seeking some shelter from the tempest. But this was exceedingly difficult, for there were no trees to break the fury of the wind—nothing but the hoary rocks to cover his beloved. He found a narrow place among them, carpeted with dead leaves, and secluded from the snow, but it afforded no shelter from the piercing wind and intense coldness of the air. He wrapped his own furs around her, and with her head resting upon his shoulder, he sought to cheer her drooping spirits, although he felt in his own heart how sad was their situation,

The hours passed slowly away, and the storm seemed only to increase. The snow fell yet faster, and the wind rushed by with a wilder shriek over the tops of the icy mountains. Winona was unconscious of her situation, for reason had forsaken its throne, and she murmured only her father's name, and wondered why he did not answer. Her cheek was cold as the icy rock that covered her, and the touch of death was already at her heart. Her lover bent over her in the deep darkness, forgetful of his own suffering, and sought to wake her once more to consciousness, but in vain.

At length, just as daylight was breaking in the east, she seemed to arouse from her lethargy, for she opened her eyes and gazed vacantly around, and when they met those of her companion, she called his name in so sweet a voice, that its melody thrilled to his very soul. He raised her head from its resting place, and she was dead! A sweet smile rested upon her features, which even the hand of death could not remove, the parted lips retained all their freshness, and the closed eyes told how calmly her soul had passed to the Spirit Land. Wacouza gazed upon her features, while his heart was too full for utterance. He parted the hair over the cold forehead, and pressed his lips to her own, but they could not bring back the life that had fled. Life was no longer a blessing to him, and he welcomed the progress of the insidious cold that was stealing slowly but surely through his frame, and chilling the life-blood as it circled through his bosom. The icy air was more pleasant to him than the zephyrs of summer, and the lethargy that was stealing over his senses banished every thought of pain, while the joyful hope that he would soon join his beloved in the Spirit Land, when the Great Spirit would smile upon them forever, animates his soul and made him forgetful of everything else.

The day waned and passed away. The storm ceased, and the sunset light fell upon the snow drifted in confusion upon the mountain tops, but no sound dwelt upon them, except that which was made by the wind as it sighed among the withered twigs. All was desolate, as if the foot of man had never troden upon their bosoms, or the rocks echoed to his voice. The Indian lovers lay side by side, cold and lifeless, while the wind mingled their dark locks together, and wandered past them with a solemn murmur, heaping the snow in strange, fantastic drifts at their feet, and then died away in the distance, so calmly that it seemed like the breath of the passing spirit.

But it was calm and serene below; no snow rested upon the bosom of she earth, and the little lake smiled as brightly in the twilight as ever. The days came and went, but Winona's light canoe rested upon its bosoms no more. The stern old chieftian had missed his daughter from his wigwam, and her little bark was found where she had left it, at her departure. The quick eyes of his braves soon detected the trail of the lovers; and led by the father, they followed it far up the side of the steep mountain, till it was lost in the smooth, untrodden snows. Then separating, each climed up higher and higher, in search of the lost maiden. Uncas wandered on alone, with his heart weighed down with sorrow, and his soul bowed with grief. At last, chance brought him to the foot of the fatal cliff where rested her body He would have ascended it, but like Sinai it was sacred from the tread of mortals. The moment he touched his foot to its soil, it shook as if the earthquake was rioting in its bowls, and the air was filled with the noise of thunder. The sky became darkened till the sun looked like a globe of blood, and the mist rolled up the side of the mountain, hiding everything below. It seemed as if the end of time had come, and uncovering his head, the age chieftain bowed before the spirit of the wilderness. At the same time, a voice spoke from the clouds as follows:

"The Great Spirit watches over his people and loves them. Let the eternal mountains be a barrier between the contending tribes, and woe to those who first break the bond of peace, for his anger shall rest upon them forever. The pestilence shall waste them away, and they shall die with famine till nothing shall remain to tell that they have ever existed; and the Spirit Land shall never be opened to them. If they will cherish peace toward each other they shall be happy, and multiply till they are as numerous as the sands on the sea-shore. They shall become powerful, and the tribes around shall fear them for their wisdom and courage, and the Great Spirit will look down upon them in love. Let them heed his words."

Once more the mountain shook to its centre, and the thunders echoed through the air, and then all was again still. The mist rolled away from the base, and the sun shone out in its full splendor, while the cloud that had overshadowed all passed away, leaving nothing but the blue sky. The aged chieftain pursued his way silently down the mountain's side, with his soul filled with awe, which overpowered grief and cast a spell around him that time could never wear away.

Such is the legend. Peace remained unbroken between the two tribes, and they both became powerful. The superstition that governed their hatred prevented them from ascending the mountains, and their hermit tops remained unexplored and unknown.

HOW MR. JONES CAUGHT A BURGLAR.

The following from a New York paper is rich:—"A well known patent medicine operator in this city is suffering from a domestic calamity. I refer to Mr J. On Monday Mr. J. went on to Boston, to do some business with Redding & Co. Mr. J returned home by way of your city. He arrived in Philadelphia by the 10 P. M. train. Feeling slightly "dry," and moderately hungry, Mr J walked up to Col Richard B. Jones', where he ordered up a broiled pheasant and a pint of Heidsick—said Heidsick, by the way, coming from your friends and advertisers, Bayard & Co., of Pearl st, N. Y. Having finished up the Heidsick, Mr. J started for home, the time being just 12 o'clock. As Mr. J. neared the house he beheld a man creeping over the roof. Mr J. then thought of his money, and exclaimed, "a burglar, by thunder!" Mr. J. then put his hand in his pocket and pulled out a revolver.—Having done this he said to burglar, "surrender or I'll shoot." Burglar kept mum, but continued crawling to an open scuttle on the next roof. Mr. J. again ordered burglar to stop. "Move another step," said Mr. J., "and I'll let daylight through your vest pattern. Burglar moved a other step.—Mr. J. then pulled trigger and fired. Burglar said "Oh!" He then fell from roof on to gable, and then rolled into the eave-gutter. Mr J. then applied his night key, rushed up stairs—out at the scuttle, and approached burglar. Burglar said "spare my life and I'll make a clean breast of it.—Burglar confessed—said he had been spending the night with Mrs. J. Mr. J then ordered up a light, and found burglar to be a celebrated music teacher residing in Arch street. Mr. J then ordered him to get up and go down stairs. Music teacher obeyed orders. Music teacher followed Mr. J. down scuttle, down stairs, and to the hall door. He then left the stoop precipitately, assisted by Mr J.'s boot—No. 11's with double soles. Shortly afterwards Mrs. J. appeared at the same spot, and left the premises with the same assistance. In the morning Mr. J. consulted a first class lawyer. "Clear case of crim. con.," says the lawyer; "sue him." "Go ahead," said Mr J. Lawyer went ahead and served papers this morning. Papers say that Mr. J. wants music teacher to show cause why he should not pay $10,000 for taking liberties with other men's wives. This will be a rich case What the music teacher's wife will say when she returns from Baltimore, remains to be seen.

A RACE ACROSS THE ATLANTIC.—The Liverpool Times says: The United States Mail Steamship Atlantic left New York for Liverpool on the 1st of March. Among the passengers was a man named Winter, (with his wife) a clerk of a mercantile firm in that city, having in his possession $2,000, belonging to his employers, and which he had obtained by breaking open the safe. On his absence being ascertained, together with the amount of money with which he had absconded, the principal of the firm obtained a warrant for his apprehension, and took passage by the British and North American Mail Steamship Persia, which sailed three days afterwards. The chances were in favor of the criminal clerk, for, though the Persia is the fastest steamer afloat, it could scarcely be expected that she would overtake a full powered steamer which sailed three days before her. No signs of the pursued steamer was seen until off the port, when the Persia came up with, and passed her. On Mr Hood—the gentleman who boards the Cunard Steamers to take charge of the mails, going aboard, he was introduced to the pursuing merchant, who asked, with some anxiety, if any one had landed from the Atlantic. On being answered in the negative, he stated the case, and asked for a detective. Subsequently, accompanied by a police officer, he boarded the Atlantic, and confronted the astounded Winter, whose dreams of security were thus rudely dissipated. Nearly the whole of the missing money was found upon him. He was brought ashore to await the decision of Mr. Nathaniel Hawthorne, United States Consul at Liverpool, who ordered him to be sent back, in custody, by the Atlantic, the steamer which brought him, and which sailed for New York on Wednesday last.

HEAVY.—The funeral and inquest expenses, as to Dr. Burdell, will cost, it is supposed, $1,000 to $1,200. The funeral expenses were considerably over $400, of which 60 carriages, being the number employed, cost $240 at $4 each; the coffin $75; sexton's bill and other charges, $100.

The expenses of the Coroner were $50, charged for searching the yard; the chemists and physicians who made the post mortem examination and analyzed the blood found on different things, about $250; also penny postage on about 1,500 letters he received; and other expenses

Besides these, several police officers were in attendance at No. 31 Bond street for a number of days, to say nothing of the time taken from jurors, and the innumerable small items which go to make up such a proceeding.

The next heavy cost will be the law expenses of the trials of the parties accused. The Poole homicide cost the city but little short, probably, of $100,000, taking all disbursments into consideration, including the salaries of judges and other official officers The terrible homicide at the foot of Dey street, some $20,000; and others that could be named, in proportion.

A murder, such as that of Dr. Burdell, is emphatically a calamity, however viewed; and not the least, in a financial aspect, to those who are ultimately called upon to foot the bills in the aggregate.

A POINT OF ORDER.—One of the members of the lower House of New York, rejoiced in the name of Bloss He had the honor of representing the county of Monroe, and if his sagacity as a legislator did not win for him the respect of his associates, his eccentricities often ministered to their entertainment.

One day in the midst of a windy harangue that had become intolerable for its length and emptiness, the "member from the metropolis" stopped to take a drink of water.—Bloss, springing to his feet cried:

"Mr Speaker, I call the gentleman from New York to order!"

The whole Assembly was startled and stilled; the member from New York stood aghast with the glass in his hand, while the speaker said:

"The gentleman from Monroe will please state his point of order."

To which Mr. Bloss with very great gravity replied:

"I submit, sir, that it is not in order for a windmill to go by water."

It was a shot between wind and water, the verbose orator was confounded, and immediately put himself and his glass down together.

Odds and Ends.

APPALING EXPERIMENT WITH AN IDIOT.—Dr. Mario relates that an idiot in the hospital at Salzburg, appearing to be singularly insusceptible to fear, an experiment of an appalling character and consequence was made upon him as an means of putting his susceptibility to the test. It was proposed to produce in him the impression that he was a dead man just come to life. A person accordingly, had himself laid out as a corpse, and enveloped in a shroud, and the idiot, was ordered to watch over the dead. The idiot, observing some motion in the corpse, desired it to be still, and the pretended corpse raising himself in spite of this admonition, the idiot seized a hatchet, which, unluckily, was within his reach, and cut off one of the feet of the counterfeit, and unmoved by his cries, cut off his head!—He then resumed his station by the real corpse.

"MAKE HIM SUPPORT THE CHILD."—The Sunday Dispatch says: Last week, we told a joke about a manager, who knew more about digging turf than he did about school books and the drama. One night, just as the curtain was about to be "rung up," he heard a great rumpus on the stage. He soon discovered that two policemen had one of his sturdy supernumeraries in custody, and were dragging him towards the door. "What a-are you doing here, taking away me acto-ors?" exclaimed he, in a rage, seizing one of the officials by the collar.—"Mr. McGucken," interrupted the stage manager, "do not interfere with the officers; the young man is charged with a very serious crime." "Very serious crime?" inquiringly asked the manager; "an' wha-at is it?" "Arson, replied the bland stage manager. "Arson! an' is it arson?—oh, take the durthy vagabond out from behind the seanery—an' d'ye mind, misther officers—make him supp-o-ort the child!"

A boy some fifteen years of age went to a store to make a purchase of an article, but for the life of him could not recollect what he was sent for After a long study, and of course scratching his head and biting his nails, a happy thought seemed to strike him, and he suddenly remarked to the merchant:

"Oh, you know what I want—I want some of that stuff that makes a biscuit hump itself."

The boy wanted yeast."

There is a good story told of a handsome Yankee pedlar who made love to a young widow down in Pennsylvania. He accompanied his declaration with an allusion to two impediments to their union. "Name them," said the widow. "The want of means to set up a retail store" They parted, and the widow sent the pedlar a check for ample means. When they met again, the pedlar had hired and stocked his store, and the smiling fair one begged to know the other impediment. I have got a wife!"

ANECDOTE OF LORD RAGLAN.—A capital anecdote of Lord Raglan, when wounded at Waterloo, is told in London. The authority is the Prince of Orange. The prince used to recount that not a word announced the entry of a new patient, nor was he conscious of the presence of Lord Raglan (then Lord Fitzroy Somerset) till he heard him call out, in the usual way, "Halloo! don't carry away that arm till I have taken off my ring" Neither the wound nor the operation had extorted a groan from the wounded man.

If you want a woman to recognize you in the streets, go well dressed. From some cause or other, no cloth is visible to the female eye that costs less than eight dollars per yard. We get this from Dr. Staats, who has made the subject his study. Queer, isn't it?

THE STEAM WAGON.—MR Overton, the inventor of the Steam Wagon, has sold his right to a certain portion of the State to several gentlemen of San Francisco. It appears that a joint stock company is being formed to construct a wagon and passenger cars to run between San Francisco and San Jose.

When an act passed in Paris that no dog should go at large without a muzzle, a man was brought up for infringing. In defence he alleged that his dog had a muzzle. "How is that?" quoth the Justice. "Oh," said the defendant, "the act does not say whether it should be the dog's own muzzle or a leather muzzle."

A yellow-covered novel-writer says:—"Florabel clasped her wide white brow with her two hands, as if to still thunder of thought booming through her brain." This must be the young lady whose eyes "emit lightning flashes."

A DAILY PAPER one day thus announced a marriage:

"In Brooklyn, on Tuesday, 25th inst., by the Rev. H. Nye, Louis W. Towt to Helen Jeannette, daughter of Philip Adams, Esq., all of consumption!"

An Irishman called into a store, and priced a pair of gloves. He was told they came to ten shillings. "Och, be me sowl, thin," says he, "I'd sooner my hands 'ud go barefooted, than pay that price for 'em."

Young ladies who faint on being "proposed to," can be restored to consciousness by just whispering in their ear that you were only joking.

Just for the fun of the thing, we should like to see a stuttering woman, a Quaker with a wooden leg, or a dead jackass.

Young Wife—"O, I am so glad you like birds; what kind do you most admire?" Young Husband—"Well, I think a good turkey, with plenty of dressing, is about as nice as any."

A sentimental chap intends to petition Congress for an act to improve the channels of affection, so that, henceforth, "the course of true love may run smooth."

The Fire of Tuesday.

To form an opinion of the true cause which led to the conflagration of Tuesday last, and the death of the children of James Murray, from the reports of the daily press, requires a mind very equally balanced, for the reason, every paper gives a different account of the affair; several of them containing gross inconsistencies, untruths, and garbled statements. For the information of the public, the reputation of the Fire Department, and to render the proper credit to those who are entitled to it, we are induced to make the following statement, based upon reliable, and most positive evidence of disinterested parties.

The fire broke out at precisely 6½ o'clock A. M., the alarm being given by persons in the street.—There being no air at the time stirring, the smoke ascended in a straight column as if issuing from a chimney; and the bell ringer, in accordance with the standing orders of the Board of Delegates, did not strike an alarm until the fire became apparent. As soon as the alarm was given in Bush street, the apparatus of Columbian Engine Company No. 11, located within twenty feet of Milton Place, was rolled and put to work; her stream, a powerful one, being directed against the front of the building.—In the meantime, the alarm having been sounded, the entire department came upon the ground and went to work, requiring but fifteen minutes of time to subdue the fire—their efforts being ably seconded by the hook and ladder, who were promptly at the scene—St. Francis placing the first ladders against the building, upon which the pipemen ascended. The house was a two-story frame, in the second story of which Mr. Murray and his family resided, occupying the front room, that portion over the hall being used as a kitchen, the further portion of it as a sleeping apartment. On the morning of the fire, Mr. Murray rose quite early and made up a large fire in the kitchen stove, and having partaken of his breakfast, went to his place of business, leaving the fire burning, telling Mrs. Murray to watch it. It appears that the elbow of the pipe inside the room was broken, and hanging near it, was a number of pieces of the infant's linen; the draft fiercely drawing the flames through, set fire to the linen, which communicated to the cotton ceiling, and the first intimation Mrs. Murray had of the fire—she having fallen asleep—was the crackling and heat of the flames, as they rolled around her. She, bewildered, instantly seized the infant she was nursing at the time, and ran with it in her arms, into the street. Since her confinement, some two months since with twins, Mrs. Murray has been very ill, and at times unable to articulate; which being combined with her fright, rendered it impossible for her to make known to those around, that her babes were in danger; and it was not until the fire was nearly quenched, and Chief Engineer Whitney, Mr. Ezekiel of St. Francis Hook and Ladder Company No. 1, and Mr. Bartlett of Sansome Hook and Ladder Company No. 3, had entered the burning building to cut away some portions of the wood work; the Chief ascending through a rear entrance, and the others going up a ladder of the St. Francis Company. When those gentlemen entered the room, Captain B. C. Donnellan, of the Police Department, upon a portrayal of whose heroic efforts so much ink has been wasted by certain papers altogether from ex-parte statements, was found very much affected, standing by the bed containing the remains of the children, and who left the room before the bodies were passed out. And here we will remark en passant, that the ladder used to ascend into the room, was not procured by Captain Donnellan, as is set forth in the Bulletin, but was placed there by the St. Francis Company. The statement contained in the Alta, that the bodies of the children were brought from the ruins by Captain Donnellan, is not true. The eldest child was first taken up by Mr. Ezekiel, but he finding it so horribly burnt, that it could not be passed through without falling to pieces, it was laid one side, and the youngest was then handed to Chief Engineer Whitney, who passed it to Assistant Engineer Van Orden, and from him to a place of safety. The oldest was then taken up by Mr Bartlett and Mr. Ezekiel, by forcing their hands and arms under the cinders, and gradually lifting the body on a board and passing it down the ladder.

We ask Mr. P. P. Hull, the editor, and Mr. M. M'Noah, the assistant editor, of the Town Talk, "the name of the fireman, and the company to which he is attached, who stood on duty at the door, denied the statement that the children were in the house and debarred those anxious for the search from undertaking it." We are astonished that the gentlemen we have named, who have always been warm friends of the firemen, would permit such a paragraph to have publicity without first assuring themselves of its truth. Had they done so, they would have found there was no truth in the information.

Great injustice has been done the Fire Department in the several notices of the press, regarding the fire in Milton Place, and we trust that in future reporters for the papers will make their application to headquarters for information, and by that means not be led astray.

HOSE.—Chief Engineer Whitney has distributed a portion of the new hose to the different engine companies, giving each two hundred feet; with the request that their officers will couple the new hose to the apparatus in the event of a fire, and by that means keep it from being injured.

Correspondence.

SAN FRANCISCO April 22, 1857.

H. A. COBB, Esq., Chairman Fire Department Cemetery Committee:

DEAR SIR:—Having learned, through the medium of the Fireman's Journal, that the "San Francisco Fire Department" are desirous of increasing the fund for the improvements of their Cemetery ground and erecting a monument to deceased firemen, killed in the discharge of their duty, it has been suggested that it was in my power to aid this exceedingly proper cause, by my professional services; and I beg to state that it will afford me great happiness to co-operate with the Department in showing respect to the memories of those who, while living were willing to do so much for our protection.

I would respectfully respond to the suggestion, by proposing a Benefit, at the American Theatre, to take place on Wednesday evening next, the 29 inst., when, I am sure, the Committeecan rely upon the hearty co-operation of Messrs. George Ryer & Company.

Very truly yours, W. M. FLEMING.

AMERICAN THEATRE, April 22d, 1857.

H. A. COBB, Esq.—Sir: Desirous of aiding the very commendable object for which Mr. Fleming has generously tendered you his valuable services, we will take much pleasure in appropriating the American Theatre, with its properties and appointments to your use, on the evening of Wednesday, the 29th inst. Very respectfully, your obedient servants,

GEO. RYER & CO.

SAN FRANCISCO, April 22d, 1857.

Messrs. W. M. FLEMING and GEO. RYER & CO:

GENTLEMEN:—I am in receipt of your very kind communications of this morning, tendering the Fire Department, through me, a benefit in aid of the "Cemetery Fund;" to take place at the American Theatre, on WEDNESDAY EVENING NEXT, the 29th. In behalf of the members of the Fire Department, I accept your offer, returning you my most grateful acknowledgements for the same, hoping your noble intentions will be seconded by the public. Very truly, yours,

H. A. COBB,
Chairman F. D. Cemetery Committee.

The object of the above correspondence, fullyex plains itself, and therefore needs no comment from us. For the past two years we have strenuously advocated, that firemen should not patronise benefits given in their aid, but should stand aside and permt the public to fill the coffers of the Treasury to be benefited. This benefit to be given next week is one of an entirely different character to those heretofore announced; it is for an object in which every fireman must feel a deep and abiding interest; and we conceive it to be the bounden duty of ever member of the organization, from the first name on the roll of Empire 1 to the last on that of Sansome 3, to interest himself in the matter and endeavor to secure a great proportion of the amount necessary for the improvement of the Cemetery and the erection of the monument. The members of Monumental 6 Volunteer 7 and Columbian 11, particularly, should assist to render the offering of Wednesday night next, worthy of the cause, and thereby prove to the Department and the people generally, that a kind recollection still lingers on their memories for those martyrs to the profession of firemen—DOUGHERTY, SEAWARD, and MURRAY.

APPROPRIATE FIREMAN' PRESENT.—The Herald says: "In the window of Henry A. Cobb's auction room, on Montgomery street, can be seen a neatly carved Hook and Ladder Truck, about three feet long, with all the hooks, ladders, axes, chains and ropes attached. Along the sides of the truck are inscribed in small gilt letters the words: 'Presented by the Salamander Hook and Ladder Company of Marysville to the Lafayette Hook and Ladder Company, San Francisco.' The whole apparatus is composed of handsome white wood neatly varnished. Some of the minute carving is really beautiful. Even the chains are cut out of a solid piece of wood; and most of the truck is also carved out of one solid block. It is an appropriate present, and will be quite an ornament in the already tastefully decorated house of the Lafayette Company, of which Mr. Cobb is Foreman."

SECRETARIES.—The attention of the Secretaries of the fire Department is called to the notice of the Secretary Mr. Ezekiel, in another column. We insist that in the matter of the return of rolls, every Foreman and Secretary, be compelled to conform to the law of the Department, and swear to the correctness of their returns. The semi annual returns are as important as that preceding the election for officers of the Department.

THE BENEFIT ON WEDNESDAY.—Let every Fireman interest himself in disposing of tickets for the above benefit. The prices of admission to the Dress Circles is one dollar each and in the Gallery fifty cents. Parties purchasing tickets for the Dress Circles, can obtain seats on Wednesday morning at 10, o'clock A. M, at the Box office of the American Theatre on the principle of first come first served.

BAD PACKING.—The engine for Eureka Co. of Marysville from Button & Co., and the one for Knickerbocker Co. of this city, from James Smith, were very badly packed; in fact but little attention had been paid to the matter at all. Some portions of the bright work of both engines looked as as if it had laid in the streets during an entire winter season; the rust and mould was thick enough to cut. Such packing will not do, and men of such experiences as the builders of those engines, should be more careful.

AN ERROR.—The State Journal, some time since, we are informed, published an item, which they credited to the Fireman's Journal, stating that the members of the Brannan Fire Association, were taxed each fifty dollars as an initiation fee, to pay for their apparatus. We have carefully examined the files of this journal, and cannot find any such item, and, in justice to Mr. Brannan, we ask the State Journal to make the correction.

FIRES.—The number of large fires in the United States during the month of January, was 38, and the aggregate loss resulting was $1,010,000. During the month of February there were 29 fires, and a loss of property amounting to the large sum of $2,030,000. The loss by a fire in Mobile, was $585,000; one in Louisville $190,000; two in California $180,000.

DISTINGUISHED VISITORS.—During the week we have been honored with visits from A. W. Nightingill Chief Engineer of Marysville, Alexander Hunter Chief Engineer of Placerville, Gideon J. Nightingill, Foreman of Eureka Engine Co. No. 1 of Marysville, and Messrs Koshland, Krebs and Reed members of Protection Engine Co. No. 2 of Sacramento and John O. Donnell and W. H. Vanderbilt of the new Engine Co. of Placerville.

Sacramento Correspondence.

SACRAMENTO, April 23, 1857.

EDITOR FIREMAN'S JOURNAL: Having a leisure hour this evening, nothing of particular interest to occupy my mind, and knowing that the readers of your valuable paper in this city are very anxious to have something from Sacramento, I have concluded to give so much of fact, fancy, and street talk as I think will interest, amuse, or instruct the members of the Department; and, should I say something that will touch the "quick," or "tramp on somebody's corns," I hope the shoe will not pinch so tight that the owner will be compelled to require an "editorial" to help him out of the dilemma.

I cannot better interest your readers than by adopting some system of narrating what I desire; consequently, I will take up the heads of the Department first; second, the legislative body; the Board of Delegates; third, the Conservative or Financial Branch, the Trustees, and fourth, the companies, severally or jointly, as suits my fancy.

I have not much to say on the first part of my subject, because we have, as a whole, one of the best Board of Engineers that has ever held office in this or any other State; and just here I will say I do not intend this for flattery, because each has his faults, and of them I am going to speak briefly.

Mr. Arents is a gentleman, a good fireman, and one who has the interest of the Department at heart, and would make an unexceptionable officer if he would use his own judgment in all matters of active fire duty; but he allows himself to be led astray at times by pretended friends, whose only object, covertly, is to bring him into disrepute among the firemen, and thereby disable and cripple his influence with the Department.

Mr. Brickman, the First Assistant, is also a good Fireman, and during his term of office I have heard but one charge against him, viz: that he has not the boldness, or if he has, does not thwart the wishes of the "Confidence Boys." In other words, he allows them, without restraint, to use rather too freely, in times of fires, the water of other companies. I cannot speak from actual observation on this point, but it is common talk among firemen, and as a friend of "Brickey's," I would say to him that if he expects to be elected to the office of Chief Engineer on the 3d of August next, he must not trpckle too much to the "boys," because Confidence Engine Company No. 1 cannot alone elect a Chief Engineer—although I must acknowledge that whoever that company indorses for Chief, will be rather hard to beat.

Now, what shall I say of the Second Assistant Burkmar—a good, easy soul—endeavoring, to the best of his ability, to discharge his duty at all times. One objection (and only one) can be raised to Mr. B.; he is too free and easy with the members of the Department; lacks that dignity of manner of which every officer of a company, association, or assemblage should be possessed, and consequently his orders and opinions are not received with that respect due to the station he holds.

I have seen fit, Mr. Editor, to speak thus plainly of these officers—being a friend to all—that they may correct their faults.

I have but little to say about the actions of the Board of Delegates for the last month or six weeks except the trial of W. B. Hunt, foreman of Engine Company No. 1, for disobedience of the orders of the Chief Engineer, at a recent fire on K street. The Board, at a meeting held on the 11th inst., petitioned the Common Council for an addition of 20 by 140 feet to the ground already donated to the Department for burial purposes; and I think—justly, too—some opposition was made to it by one of the ex-Aldermen; still the Board thought no harm could arise from petitioning, although the Board of Aldermen might reject their prayer. The Common Council cannot do too much to foster and encourage our firemen; and I think that if the new Board will only donate the ground asked, they will command the almost universal esteem of the Department and citizens generally. The object of this additional ground is to give members of the Department, who have families, an opportunity to select a family plot—so that not only the father or brother, who may be a fireman, can be buried in the "Fireman's Cemetery," but also his whole family. The propriety and reasonableness of this move by the Board of Delegates is, I think, apparent to every one.

You and your readers are already aware of the fact that the application of Mechanic Engine Company No. 7, to be admitted into the Department, was rejected on the night above referred to.

At a meeting of the Board, held Tuesday evening last, the charges against Mr. Hunt were investigated, and after a fair and patient hearing, the Board acquitted him by a vote of fourteen to one. So far as the action of the Chief Engineer is concerned in this matter, his only object, in my opinion, was to make an example of Mr. Hunt, or at least to give the officers of the several companies to understand that, when he gave an order, although it might not be altogether imperative, it must be obeyed, or else the one refusing so to do might expect to be arraigned upon a charge of disobedience of orders; and I here prophesy that the next one who shall hereafter disobey directly or indirectly any order or orders from either of the Engineers will not be dealt with as lightly as Mr. Hunt.

The time is almost at hand when the several companies will be filling up their rolls for election purposes. It may not be amiss to name the candidates for the office of Chief Engineer at the next election. The State law requires that every member of the Department, to be a legal voter, must be at least ninety days next preceding the election a certificate member of a regularly organized company; therefore, any one who may join after the 5th of May will not be allowed to vote. Now for the candidates for Chief: George H. Brickman, at present First Assistant; Joseph S. Friend, foreman of Engine 3; John C. Keenan, foremen Engine 5; Leander Culver, of Engine 1; George Rowland, President of the Board of Delegates, and foreman of H. and L. 1; J. B. Blanchard, Assistant Foreman of H. and L. 1, and S. Marshall, foreman of 6. There may be some others of whom I have not heard, but these are sufficient for the present. I have not heard any candidates named for Assistant Engineers as yet, and none for Secretary of the Board of Delegates. The present incumbent will probably be re-elected, if he desires the office, as he has given, I believe, general satisfaction.

The Board of Trustees has not held a meeting for several weeks, and nothing of importance was transacted at the last session.

I have been informed that there is an application to lease the unoccupied half of the Powder Magazine, at the same price per month as that used by Mr. Oppenheim. The Trustees will, of course, lease it at once. The sum accruing now monthly to the Charitable Fund is, I believe, $6,800. I have been informed by one of the Trustees that the sum of $2,50 per month additional will, in a few weeks, be received from next rent of magazine and loan of money—making total monthly receipts $95—a very handsome income to the Charitable Fund.

As I have already written a much longer communication than I designed, I will defer any comments on companies or their acts until my next.

VERITAS.

The above we insert, as it came from our correspondent. As regards his remarks upon the officers of the Fire Department, we do not wish to be understood as indorsing them by reason of their publication; although at the same time there is not anything of an offensive nature contained in them. [ED.

Personal.

SACRAMENTO, April 21st, 1857.

EDITOR FIREMAN'S JOURNAL: In the Journal of the 11th of April, I find an article headed "Personal," signed by John T. Bayley, followed by editorial remarks, relative to a certain part of the "History of the Sacramento Fire Department." In justice to myself, and to substantiate what was published in regard to that "Grapple," I will be compelled to publish the original bill — one of the items of which was for a "Grapple" — paid by D. O. Mills, Esq., Treasurer of the Citizens' Fire Committee.:

SACRAMENTO CITY, August 19, 1851.

Mutual Hook and Ladder Company:
To Andrew & Carpenter, Dr.,

To 3 pair Sister Hooks	$9 00
To mend Chains and Hooks	8 00
To 91 lbs. Grapple, at 75c	68 25
To 2 large Hooks and Fixtures	100 00
To 105 lbs Chains	28 75
	$214 20

Received Payment,
ANDREWS & CARPENTER.

On the back of the original bill I find the following:

"Mr Mills will please pay the within bill.
"JOHN T. BAYLEY."

The above is an exact copy, verbatim et literatim; and now, all I have to say to John T. Bayley, and you, Mr. Editor, is, that "Historian Dodson" has not published "a base falsehood," but on the contrary, John T. Bayley has denied what he indorsed in 1851—who has, to quote his exact language, "published miserable, contemptible falsehoods"—not your "Historian," Mr. Editor. With these few remarks, I leave Mr. Bayley, with the understanding that this will be my only "personal" article; and if he desires further proof of the "Grapple," he knows where to find me.

So far as your editorial remarks concern me in this "Grapple" connection, you, I hope, will retract, or at least set me right editorially.

Respectfully,
Your obedient servant,
W. B. H. DODSON.

If our correspondent will point out where and how our remarks on the communication from Mr. Bayley injure him, we will retract—if unmerited, cheerfully; but for the life of us we cannot trace the offensive portion. On the contrary, we thought our remarks rather complimentary than otherwise. [ED.

S. B. LEAMAN.—This individual ran away from his engagement at the American Theatre on Wednesday night, and the management not receiving a notice of the fact in time to make other arrangements, was compelled to close for the night; as Leaman was cast for one of the principal characters of the play. All honorable men will look with contempt upon such a lack of principle as that shown by Leaman. Such dishonesty (for it cannot be called by any other name) should not go unnoticed, and we hope no manager throughout the State, will countenance it by engaging the runaway Leaman, because he will betray them if they do.—Unless we very much mistake the public, Leaman has made his last appearance on the boards of any of the theatres in this city. We are informed that to violate agreements, is an old trick of Leaman's.

THE FIREMAN'S ADVOCATE.—This is the name of a new and beautifully printed paper, which made its first appearance in Boston on April 4th. It is of folio size and devoted to the interests of the firemen of New England. It is vigoroaely edited and if we judge from the tenor of the articles in the first issue the firemen of that section, will have an advocate they may be proud of. We welcome the "Advocate" with pleasure and in extending it the right hand of fellowship and wishing it every success concur with its editors "that every Fire Department needs some publication as its accredited organ."

MR. FLEMING'S BENEFIT.—This is an occasion which should not be overlooked by the lovers of the drama; for in addition to the positive claims of the estimable beneficiary, a splendid bill is provided, embracing the thrilling play of the "Stranger," the Scotch Drama of "Rob Roy," and the first appearance of Mr. Jas. T. Anderson, who will personate the character of "Bailie Nicol Jarvie." Give the excellent actor and worthy gentleman a bumper house, for he deserves it.

TURKEY AND FIXINGS.—If "Mantz" of the Marysville Inquirer, will consult the "stars," and discover the man, who pied our forms, we will not ma(i)ntz matters with him, but treat him with the best the market affords, at the same time compel the rascal, to "sit" at a side galley, and live upon the nutriment which flows from the distribution of a column of matter.

SAN FRANCISCO MINSTRELS.—Maguire's Opera House has been crowded during the week, by enthusiastic audiences; eager listeners of the delightful singing of the minstrels. These are the very best that have ever performed in this or any city, and therefore it is no wonder they attract such crowds of people to their concerts. Talents are always sure to draw.

THE "BRODERICK."—The new engine company just formed at Placerville, have adopted the name of "Broderick Engine Company No. 1." This is a well deserved compliment to a fearless and zealous fireman and upright man. The Placervillians have done well.

INFORMATION WANTED.—We wish to know the name of the member of this Fire Department, who disposed of his Diploma Certificate to a member of the Sacramento Fire Department for two dollars and a half cash, and no discount.

MISSED.—The services of the new bucket company, under command of Foreman Andrews, were sadly missed at the Milton Place fire. Come, gentlemen you must be more active; the Department cannot possibly get along without your help.

HAVE NO FIRES.—A lady writing from Paris says: "A fire here is an almost unheard of event," Our firemen would look upon such a city as a sort of one horse town. After this announcement Frank Whitney will hardly compromise himself by going to Paris when he makes his "pile."

SPUNK.—The Oroville Record of the 18th says: That the fire Company in running their truck from the house yesterday, came in contract with the side of the building. The truck stopped, but something had to come and the boys went on with the tongue only.

THE CHARITABLE FUND.—We have conversed with the Trustees of the Charitable Fund, relative to that Institution; and we are assured by those gentlemen that just so soon as the Legislature adjourns, and Mr. Sullivan the acting Treasurer returns to this city, a full report will be made to the Fire Department.

ELECTED.—G. S. C. Seymour, formerly a member of Knickerbocker Engine Co. No. 5 of this city, has been elected Foreman, of Mutual Engine Co. No. 3 of Marysville.

PLACERVILLE.—The people of Placerville have subscribed $1000 for the formation of an Engine Company.

WARREN 4.—The members of Warren Engine Co. of Marysville, an independent Company have purchased of Mr. John C. Lane the Huneman Engine, just arrived on the Staghound. The amount to be paid is $2500.

CHICAGO.—The late loss by fire at Chicago amounted to $550,000; one house lost $150,000.

American Theatre.

The performances at this establishment, during the past week have been eminently worthy the attention of an intelligent community. Mr. Fleming's personations of "Sir Giles Overreach," "Richard," "Hamlet," and "Richelieu," have stamped him an artist of no mean capacity, and when we state that he has succeeded in satisfying the most critical who have witnessed his efforts, we but echo the sentiments of a large number of our most judicious theatre-goers, with whom we have conversed.

The dramatic art must be advanced by the efforts of such actors as Mr. Fleming, for there is a truthfulness in his delineations which never fails to command the true sympathies of his audience; indeed, we have rarely seen such delighted listeners in a theatre, as have been present on the occasion referred to. In this engagement, the management have evinced a correct appreciation of the requirements of the San Francisco public and if the ladies and gentlemen who have so heartily coincided with us in our opinion, will but take the pains to advise with all their friends on the subject, the theatre will not hold those who will be induced to attend during the last week of Mr. Fleming's sojourn with us. Mr. George Ryer's managerial capacity is evidenced in the admirable manner the plays are placed upon the stage, and we heartily rejoice in having a theatre where the drama can be witnessed with pleasure; either by the critic or the uninitiated. We hazard nothing in pronouncing Mr Fleming one of the best actors of the age. The company have evinced a care and attention in the support of this gentleman, which has afforded us exceeding satisfaction; and this we conceive to be a compliment to him, as much as the result of a proper regard for their art. Miss Estelle Potter has won many friends by her excellent acting during the week, and we sincerely hope she may be retained for the whole season.

As will be seen by the correspondence and advertisement in another column, Mr. Fleming has volunteered his services for the benefit of the "Firemen's Cemetery Fund," and that he has been seconded by Mr. George Ryer, in a very handsome manner. We trust such generous action will meet with the espouse from the public which it is so justly entitled to—for certainly there cannot possibly be offered to our citizens a more worthy object for their attention. For the occasion the great play of "Richelieu" has been selected, together with a "Fireman's Address," by Mr. Fleming.

An original play, entitled "Polomba, or the Carbonari," is underlined at this house. It was written for Mr. Fleming by Spencer W. Cone, Esq, of New York, and is founded upon incidents developed in the career of one of the vast secret political organizations, which, within the last twenty years, wielded so powerful an influence over the destinies of Europe, and embraces these principles: "That might is not right—that the kings of Europe reign either by virtue of a convention or by virtue of arms. We therefore declare that the Carboni have associated to restore to all the nations of the continent, and to France especially, the free exercise of the right to choose the government which suits them best. We all swear to maintain this principle."

THE PENNSYLVANIANS. A new band of Vocalists, the Pennsylvanians, has arrived in this city, consisting of five gentlemen and two ladies, all represented to us as being excellent singers; of a character similar to the Alleghanians. The ladies, Miss Agatha Mandaville, Soprano and Miss Jennie Mandaville Contralto, are not only talented performers but very beautiful ladies. Mr. J. R. Taylor, Basso, Mr J. R. Johnson, Tenor and Comic delineator. The latter gentleman is said to be the best comic singer in the United States; those who have heard him, pronounce his efforts irresistible. Mr. Mordo the manager of the troupe, is an old Philadelphian, and well known to many gentlemen here. The Pennsylvanians open on Monday evening next at the Metropolitan Theatre, and will doubtless attract a large audience.

SHASTA.—An Engine Company has been formed in Shasta, and a committee is to be sent to this city to purchase an apparatus.

NEW ADVERTISEMENTS.

Dr. L. J. Czapkay is the only Physician and Surgeon now in California who has accumulated a fortune solely by the practice of his profession. He has a classical education, and added to the talents of a physician and surgeon, he is a gentleman of easy manners, and possesses a frank and open heart. These qualities have contributed much to his success; but that which has done more for him than all else is the uniform candor he has shown to his patients. He never deceives them, but tells them with sincerity and honesty his opinion of their diseases. Though possessing confidence in himself, he never vituperates other gentlemen of the profession; and from our acquaintance with him, we believe he strives religiously "to do unto others as he would that others should do unto him.

We refer the reader to the Doctor's advertisement in an other column.

Certificate.—I, the undersigned, Governor of Hungary, do hereby testify that Dr. L. J. CZAPKY has served during the contest for Hungarian Liberty as Chief Surgeon in the Hungarian Army, with faithful perseverance: Wherefor, I have given to him this Certificate, and do recommend him to the sympathy, attention, and protection of those who are capable of appreciating patriotic self sacrifice and undeserved misfortune.

MEDICAL.

DR. L. J. CZAPKAY'S

Grand Medical and Surgical Institute,

Sacramento streets below Montgomery, opposite Pacific Mail Steamship Company's Office, San Francisco.

Established for the permanent cure of all private and chronic diseases and the suppression of quackery.

DR. L. J. CZAPKAY, late in the Hungarian Revolutionary War, Chief Physician to the 20th regiment of Honveds, Chief Surgeon to the military hospital at Pesth, Hungary, and lecturer on diseases of urinary organs and diseases of women and children, has opened his institute for the cure of all forms of private diseases, such as syphilis gonorrhea, nocturnal emissions, and all the consequences of self-abuse. In the first stages of syphilitic or gonorrhoeal diseases, he guarantees a cure in a few days without inconvenience to the patient to his business. When a patient by neglect or improper treatment, has developed the symtoms of secondary syphilis, such as buboes, or painful swellings of the groins, or ulcers of the throat or nose which if not checked, destroy the soft parts and cause the bones to mortify, seperate and come away, leaving the sufferer hideous to behold; or when splotches or pimples break out upon the skin, or when he has painful swellings upon the bones, or when his constitution is injured so as to predispose to consumption or constitutional disease, the Doctor guarantees a cure or asks no compensation.

In rheumatism, chronic or or acute, in dysentery or diarrhoea he has safe and effectual remedies. For the treatment of the consequences of self-abuse, such as nocturnal emissions, nervousness, timidity, headache, pains in the back and limbs, with general weakness, loss of appetite, loss of memory, injury to the sight, restlessness, confusion of ideas, dislike for society, and a feeling of weariness of life, with the nervous system so exciteable that slight noises shock or startle the patient, making his existence miserable. For the above maladies, the Doctor will guarantee a cure or ask no compensation. He can be consulted free of charge, and invites all to call, as it will cost them nothing, and may be much to their advantage.

A Tribute of Merited Worth.

THE ingratitude of man to his fellow-man is so often met in life that testimonials, prompted by the finer feelings of the heart, are oasis in the life of those who sacrifice their best days in philanthropic devotion to the alleviation of the ills of frail mortality. Empiricism floods the columns of our press with fraudulent and fictitious letters singing paeans to the worth of their egotistical charlatanism. Below we appen1a letter from a worthy man, who a brief period since seemed destined to "shuffle off this mortal coil," who looked forward to his dissolution with that pleasure which only those weighed down by the heavy hand of disease can. Contrary to hope, the ability of a skillful physician has restored him to his former health Relieved from his terrible situation, and impelled by gratitude, he makes known his case and remedial agent, and his statement is authenticated by a notary public. The demands of society imperiously command its publicity, and it is given more to warn the unwary than to sound the praises of a physician of whom scores of like cases can be cited.

CERTIFICATE.

The undersigned, desirous of acquainting those who may be unfortunate enough to be similarly afflicted where a permanent relief to their sufferings may be obtained, feels it his duty to thus publicly express his sincere gratitude to Dr. L. J. Czapkay for the permanent recovery of his health. Borne down by the distressing symptoms incident to the vicious practices of uncontrollable passions of youth, depressed in body and mind, unable to perform even the most trifling duty imposed upon the daily avocations of life, I sought the advice of many physicians who at first regarded my disease as of trifling importance; but alas! after a few weeks, and in several instances months, of their treatment, I found, to my unutterable horror, that instead of cure, and being finally told by one that the disease being principally confined to the brain, medicines would be of little consequence, I despaired of ever regaining my health, strength, and energy; and as a last resort, and with but a faint hope, called upon Dr. Czapkay, who, after examining my case, prescribed some medicine which almost instantly relieved me of the dull pain and dizziness in my head. Encouraged by this result, I resolved to place myself immediately under his care, and, by a strict obedience to his directions and advice, my head became clear, my ideas collected the constant pain in the back and groins, the weakness my limbs, the nervous resction of my whole system on the slightest alarm or excitement, the misanthrophy and evil forebobings, the self-distrust and want of confidence in others, the incapability to study and want of resolution, the frightful, exciting, and at times, unsurmisable dreams at night, followed by involuntary discharges, have all disappeared, and, in fact, in two months after having consulted the Doctor, I felt as if inspired by a new life—that life which, but a short time ago, I contemplated to end by my own hand.

With a view to guard the unfortunate from falling into the snares of ill-competent quacks, I deem it my duty to offer this testimony to the merit and skill of Dr. Czapkay, and recommend him to all who may stand in need of medical advice, being assured by my own experience that, once under his care, a radical and permanent cure will be effected.

B. F. FILLMORE.

State of California, County of San Francisco.—Subscribed and sworn before me this 17th day of April, A. D. 1855.

JOHN MIDDLETON, Notary Public.

Spermatorrhœa.

OUR local weakness, nervous debility, low spirits, lassitude, weakness of the limbs and back, indisposition and incapability for labor and study, dullness of apprehension, loss of memory, aversion to society, love of solitude, timidity, self distrust, dizziness, headache, involuntary discharges, pains in the side affections of the eyes, pimples on the face, sexual and other infirmities in man, are cured without fail by the justly celebrated physician and surgeon, L. J. Czapkay. His method of curing diseases is new (unknown to others,) and hence the great success. All consultations by letter or otherwise, free. Address L. J. Czapkay, M. D., San Francisco, California.

A CARD.—Prompted by an honest desire of my heart, I wish to lay before the public a case which deserves a high commendation, not only as an act of scientific skill but that of humanity also. About two years ago I suddenly, and from causes unknown to me, was seized with a fit of epilepsy, which, owing to my inability to meet the expenses consequent upon a thorough medical treatment, and the discouragement I met with on attempting it, soon became such (and was then led to believe) as to defy the skill of physicians. I was frequently, while in pursuit of my calling, thrown down to the ground without the slightest warning, and, although susceptible of the agonies, I yet despised the miseries of my life, and soon learned to look upon those who would render me assistance or shelter me from danger as enemies who sought to prolong the misery of my existence. While in this state and having previous to my affliction tasted the sweets of life, I once more was induced to attempt existing at the solicitation of friends, by recommending me to Dr. L. J. CZAPKAY. I told him my circumstances and my inability to reward him for his services, regardless of which, however, he at once undertook my case, and with the blessing of God I was once more restored to perfect health. Unable by reward to thank the benevolent Doctor for his kind and generous acts of my indisposedness, I consider it due to myself and to all afflicted, to make the case public, in order that those in need of medical advice may find a physician whom every confidence can be placed.

The Greatest Discovery of the Age.

GREAT BLESSING TO MANKIND.—Innocent but potent.—Dr. L. J. Czapkay's Prophilactium (self-distributing agent), a sure preventive against gonorrhoeal and syphilitic diseases, and an unsurpassed remedy for sexual, scrofulous, gangrenous, and cancerous affections, whether the charges from the vagina, urethra, and urethra, and all concomitant symptoms and diseases. As inoculations is a preventive against small-pox, so is Dr. Czapkay's Prophilactium a preventive against syphilitic and gonorrhoeal diseases. Although harmless in itself, it possesses the property of chemically destroying the syphilitic virus, and thereby preventing it from being infected by the most loathsome of all diseases. Let no young man who appreciate health be without Dr. Czapkay's Prophilactium. It is in very convenient packages, and will be found convenient to use, being used as a soap. Price $5.

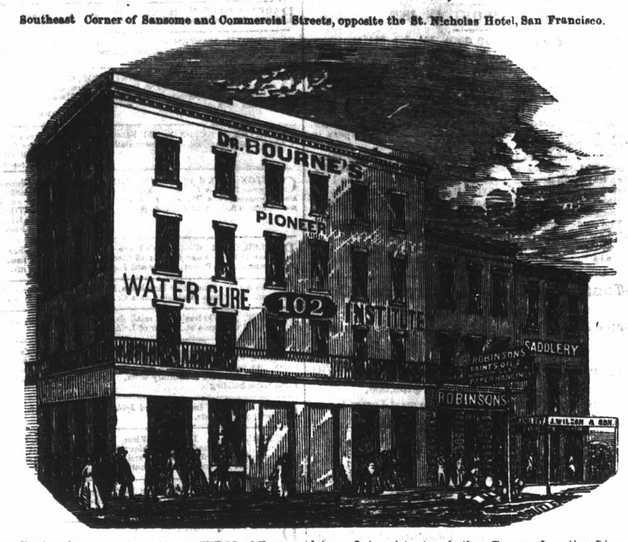
THE ELECTRO-CHEMICAL BATHS
OF DR. BOURNE,

Southeast Corner of Sansome and Commercial Streets, opposite the St. Nicholas Hotel, San Francisco.



Are affecting the most extraordinary CURES of Fever and Ague, Intermittant and other Fevers, Jaundice, Disease of the Liver, Kidneys, the Genital and Urinary Organs, all Sexual Disorders, Paralysis, Neuralgi, including Tic Doloreux Stiff Joints, and are also employed with astonishing success in DISEASES OF THE EYE.

Also, all indolent Ulcers, Tumors, Swellings, Abcesses, Cancer of the Womb, all other affections of the Womb, and Cancerous affections generally, and Scrofula. These Baths seem to be Nature's own chosen medium for affecting cures where all other means would fail without them; and prove beyond the possibility of a doubt, to all who take them, the iniquity of medical practice which poisons the system by administering to it calomel, arsenic, lead, zinc iron, antimony, quinine, iodide of potassa, and a whole host of deadly drugs, which remain in the system, and are EXTRACTED BY THESE BATHS.

During fifteen years I have never given even a solitary dose of oil or salts, much less any POISONOUS DRUGS or herbs, and have never seen a case in which they were requisite if water treatment was employed. When will the people cease to be such simpletons as to hire men to POISON and BLEED them, while they also retain on their statute books laws against poisoning, maiming, and bleeding CATTLE? Are the members of the human family less worthy of protection than animals? I assert, in the face of the State and the world at large, that there never was, or is now, and never will be, a case in which calomel, crude mercury, quinine, arsenic, lead, zinc, antimony, iodine, or any other POISON, should have been, or should be, administered to the human system, or in which bleeding, cupping, or leeching are required; and further, that hundreds of thousands fill premature graves through an ill timed or overdose of salts or oil. Let the people ponder on these things, and if the poor and deluded victims of medical rascality desire health, I pledge the honor of one man at least that I will so employ NATURE'S AGENCIES of good food, air, pure water, exercise clothing, the Electro-Chemical Baths, and the sleeping and waking hours, that without a particle of NASTY and POISONOUS medicine, I will so arouse the powers of their systems that if there be any strength left they shall speedily get perfectly well in body, with minds so expanded to the perception of natural philosophy, as thereafter to cause them to set their faces against all professional rogues or fools, and awake them to a knowledge of the evils of intrusting their own vital interest to the keeping of others whose interest must ever be antagonistic to their own.

Address, by letter or personally, Dr. BOURNE, Water Cure Physician, Sansome street, opposite St. Nicholas Hotel San Francisco, importer into this State of the FIRST and ONLY apparatus for giving these delightful and beneficial Electro-Chemical Baths, and whose experience in their use warrants him in speaking of them in the terms he employs They require great caution in administering them, and Dr. Bourne never intrusts that duty to others, thus avoiding all danger.

So many lying and forged certificates, and PRETENDED editorial recommendations are published, that those truthful statements of facts which Dr. Bourne could offer are withheld, rather than any should suppose they were merely got up."

Consultations without charge, and charges very moderate for the benefit conferred.

QUICK CURE—SURE CURABLE (if curable)—is the motto of Dr. BOURNE.

$100 REWARD!!!

R. H. VANCE,
PATENT AMBROTYPES

To those who wish something New and BEAUTIFUL:—We have purchased the Patent Right of CUTTING AMBROTYPES for this State, and are now prepared to take them in a style unequalled in the United States, of any size, from the smallest minature to life size.

I hereby denounce all Pictures taken on Glass in this city or State, and called Ambrotypes, as nouns, and a fraud upon the public, being a miserable imitation of the genuine article. I would say to all who have been deceived and swindled with Bogus Pictures, not to condemn this new and beautiful invention until they have seen the GENUINE AMEROTYPES. They are said to be the most durable Picture known, as neither acids, water, or dampness of any kind, can affect them. Those having Daguerreotypes which they wish to preserve FOREVER, would do well to have them copied in Ambrotype.

Great attention will be paid to GROUPING. Groups from 2 to 50 can be made perfect. Persons can now be taken with Regalias, Military or Fireman dress, without having the insignias or letters reversed.

Children taken by this new process in less than one second.

We still continue to execute our splendid Premium Daguerreotypes as usual. Having made great and extensive additions to our Gallery, for the purpose of making and exhibiting our Ambrotype Pictures, we would be pleased to have our work examined. Our Gallery is FREE to all.
